

Growing Up in Montgomery County

Thoughts of childhood may bring about waves of nostalgia and the new exhibit at the Montgomery Museum & Lewis Miller Regional Art Center has plenty of historic toys to help foster those warm memories. Yet, the way that children have grown up in the past is vastly different from today and this exhibit explores a number of those differences by looking at the lives of children at school, performing chores, and at play. Objects and photographs from the nineteenth century through the 1950s will educate, but will also bring a smile.

Opening Reception: Thursday December 10, 2009, 6:00-8:00pm
We invite you to attend the opening reception and holiday open house at the museum. Admission to the museum will be free during the reception.

Upcoming Opportunities:

Several workshops for children are being planned for early next year.

Exhibit will run from December 2009 through May 2010.

For more information:

Sue Farrar, Executive Director

Montgomery Museum & Lewis Miller Regional Art Center

300 S. Pepper St., Christiansburg

540-382-5644

www.montgomerymuseum.org

director@montgomerymuseum.org